SOLDIERS FIELD, June 18.—Harvard and Yale clashed here this afternoon in the first game of their annual diamond series. One of the largest crowds that ever attended a game between these two rivals was on hand.

The people started for the game early, and by the time that Uncle Sam's game the signal for play to begin every seat in the stands was taken, some ten thousand people being present.

Harvard played first, and they were bested by the Yale nine, which was composed of the following players: Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan, Sullivan.

Yale Men a Sore Lot.
The Yale men were a sore lot because of their defeat at the hands of Princeton at New York Tuesday, and they were bent on taking their revenge on the Harvard team.

Uncle Joe Cannon First to Be Placed Before Convention as a Presidential Candidate.

CHICAGO, June 18.—With the platform adopted and the decks cleared for action, the Republican national convention shortly before 1 o'clock faced its most important duty when Chairman Henry Cabot Lodge called for the nomination of a candidate for the presidency of the United States.

The roll of States was called, and when Illinois was reached Congressman Henry S. Bontell took the platform to place in nomination the Prairie State's favorite son, Speaker Joseph G. Cannon.

Bontell set forth his thunder for "Uncle Joe" in a masterful manner. The reprobations stirred the distant galleries, but the concussion hardly disturbed the delegates who were directly under fire. As the thunder boomed there was a gradual crescendo. At times echoes cracked back from all parts of the compass, but they quickly became mutterings and low rumblings.

Chicago in his denunciation of trust domination and tariff extortion, most there were 25,000.

After a brief debate, it was decided to place before the convention the name of Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, as the Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States.

PLATFORM FAVORS TARIFF REVISION

CHICAGO, June 18.—The platform adopted by the Republican convention to-day lays President Roosevelt as the greatest and staunchest champion of Washington and Lincoln, and declares the party's unflinching adherence to the policy he has inaugurated, and pledges their continuance under a Republican administration.

The roll of States was called, and when Illinois was reached Congressman Henry S. Bontell took the platform to place in nomination the Prairie State's favorite son, Speaker Joseph G. Cannon.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUERS TO MEET TONIGHT

June 24 Is Last Day to Change Enrollment to the New Party.

The Independence League city committee of Boston will hold a special meeting tonight at the headquarters of the league, room 348, Old South Building, for the purpose of considering plans for the general work of the coming campaign. All enrolled voters to the Independence League and all who desire to change their enrollment or to assist in the work of the new party are invited to attend the meeting.

Matters of special interest and several important features of the campaign are to be considered by the committee.

Accommodated Workmen.

The city committee desire to emphasize the fact that those who desire to change their enrollment from one or the other of the old parties to the Independence League must do so before June 24, the 24th being the last day that the Board of Election Commissioners will change party enrollment. For the accommodation of workmen and others who cannot call at the office of the commissioners in the daytime the Board of Election Commissioners will keep open on the evenings of June 23 and 24, from 7 to 9 o'clock.

In speaking of this matter today Chairman John T. Doherty of the Independence League City Committee said:

"Voters who are engaged in the old party work are invited to make their enrollment with the Independence League in the State Prison, in the City of Boston, in the office of the Board of Election Commissioners, or in the City of Boston, in the office of the City Committee, on Tuesday and Wednesday evening."

Two Evening Sessions.

"Men whose enrollment make it inconvenient for them to visit the office of the commissioners in the daytime should not fail to take advantage of the opportunity especially provided for them through the office of the City Committee to change their enrollment next Tuesday and Wednesday evening."

There are three things we hope you noticed if you were at the Harvard-Yale game to-day—

1. The Style 2. The Color 3. And the Fit worn by the men around you.

The gathering represented the best-dressed class of men in the country—men who give considerable attention to correct attire and who are able to gratify all their style ideas.

After noting all the details of their clothes and then comparing them with the showing of Morse-Made Clothes you are better able than ever before to understand just what we mean when we say—

"It's correct, it's at Morse's."

"If it's at Morse's, it's correct."

The MAN "Murdered Himself"

Will Society Now Murder the WOMAN?

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Editors

Sarah Koten, a stranger in America, a friendless girl, was betrayed by a Dr. Auspitz, who employed her as a nurse.

The girl, who is to become a mother in a few weeks, killed the man, and said when arrested: "The man killed himself."

On the last column of this page the case of Sarah Koten is discussed by Julian Hawthorne. Those that remember "The Scarlet Letter," written by Julian Hawthorne's great father, will be doubly interested in the thoughtful writing of the son, which we publish to-day.

With Julian Hawthorne millions of citizens will discuss this case of the friendless girl and the man she killed.

She told a great truth when she said that the man "killed himself." She explained to the policeman that as the man treated her so badly, killing him was inevitable, and therefore "he killed himself." Her statement is true in another and broader sense.

Dr. Auspitz killed himself because he removed himself from the protection of laws built up slowly through centuries.

His crime was infinitely greater than the crime which the friendless girl committed, prompted by revenge and despair.

For many dark centuries human beings were ALL more or less of the Dr. Auspitz and Sarah Koten kind. The men did all the harm they could, and women, abused, defenseless, got revenge when THEY could. That condition has gradually changed. Murder has been abandoned and punishment by law substituted. Combats between enemies in the presence of a judge has been abandoned and deliberate hearing by a jury substituted.

Occasionally, however, the new laws are forgotten, and the old law of violence on one side and revenge on the other comes back. This is such a case.

The law says to Sarah Koten, "You must not kill," but it also said to Dr. Auspitz, "YOU MUST NOT DESTROY." The man pushed aside the laws.

If his spirit could come back it would have no just complaint to make. He truly "murdered himself" when he put himself outside of the law's protection.

This does not justify the woman, however, and it is not intended to justify her. The man she killed is not to be pitied. No man can speak a word in his defence. No man would wish him back alive.

The woman DID commit a crime—not against the man, but against society. She committed a crime against law, against the efforts of GOOD PEOPLE, the people that are trying to do away with murder permanently—both the murder that kills the body, and the worse murder, inflicted upon her, which kills the soul.

Sarah Koten will be made to realize by a judge that the law is supreme; that while a man may give her cause and excuse for any act against HIM, no man could give her an excuse for ignoring the LAWS of the country.

But HOW will civilized society teach this lesson to Sarah Koten? Will it imitate Sarah Koten and murder her, "legally"?

Probably not. We hope not. Sarah Koten, ignorant, friendless and desperate, did blindly and, if you like, brutally, the only thing that occurred to her. She killed the man.

Society is NOT ignorant or desperate. What will society do to Sarah Koten? What do society owe to its own dignity, and how much does it owe to THAT UNBORN CHILD, THE CHILD THAT HAS BROKEN NO LAW? Is that child always to remember a mother that lived in prison, or that died as a criminal in prison, killed by the law?

It is a very interesting, clear-cut case. We are inclined to think that it will be rather hard to find twelve men to listen to Sarah Koten and then treat her very harshly.

A few earnest words from a judge, a chance to begin over again, a chance to BRING UP THAT CHILD AND DO HER DUTY BY IT. WOULD, IN OUR OPINION, BE ABOUT THE RIGHT SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM. Somehow, while the majesty of the law should always be fearful in men's eyes, it would seem a little ridiculous to say to Sarah Koten: "You have avenged yourself for the worst possible injury by killing a human being, and to set you a good example WE ARE GOING TO REVENGE OURSELVES, FOR A RELATIVELY SLIGHT INJURY, BY KILLING YOU."

When the Democratic party was democratic, when it was controlled by the people, when it refused to permit such persons as August Belmont, Thomas F. Ryan, Roger Sullivan, William F. Sheehan, Alton B. Parker and David Bennett Hill to write its declarations, name its standard-bearers and preside over its contents, it had the confidence of the public.

It was then a militant organization. It fought for the rights of society. It believed that the laws should apply to the rich as well as to the poor. It stood forth as a protecting bulwark against the encroachments of evil; it rewarded the faithful and punished the wicked.

But that time has gone. The Democratic party now is a corporation owned by a handful of men not one of whom has ever faithfully read the Declaration of Independence, not one of whom cares the justice that a free government, ruled by MEN and not PUPPETS, necessarily insists upon, impels, demands.

The party of Jackson, of Tilden, of Thurman, of Palmer, of George F. Maxey, of Ben Hill, of Voorhees, of Gray, of Harris, of Morrison, and of Vest and Vance, is now merely a tradition. Its ashes are cold, and weirdly come the echoes from its grave.

For Once Mr. Hill Tells a Political Truth

The interview printed in the AMERICAN of Thursday last with David Bennett Hill was merely supplemental information to the fact that there isn't longer any Democratic party.

All of our countrymen who read newspapers, and who gauge the signs of the times by personal communication with their fellows, have known for many a day that the party once dominated by Jackson and Tilden was nothing more than a memory. It has gone. The winds weep over its tomb, and few are the souls that sob because of its demise.

When the Democratic party was democratic, when it was controlled by the people, when it refused to permit such persons as August Belmont, Thomas F. Ryan, Roger Sullivan, William F. Sheehan, Alton B. Parker and David Bennett Hill to write its declarations, name its standard-bearers and preside over its contents, it had the confidence of the public.

First Draft of the Platform

By Wex Jones

ONCE more the Republican party, by Theodore Roosevelt, assembled, submits its cause to the people. His administration is an epoch in American history, such as Washington or Lincoln never saw. Theodore Roosevelt has given us mighty progress in justice, equality and the Square Deal. To him we are indebted for the Big Stick, the Annapolis Club and the Ten Commandments.

Under Theodore Roosevelt the American people have been led to hate liars, burglars, robbers and bachelors. Theodore Roosevelt has freed Standard Oil, $20,000,000, due the Panama Canal, chased the Spaniards out of Cuba and the confidence out of bankers.

Theodore Roosevelt in convention assembled declares unreservedly for revision of the tariff upon such articles as are not imported into this country.

Between the United States and the Philippines, Theodore Roosevelt believes in a free interchange of products, except those objected to by the Sugar and Tobacco trusts.

Theodore Roosevelt in convention assembled declares for such amendments of the statutes of procedure in the Federal courts as will prevent the issue of writs of injunction on the one hand and will, on the other hand, facilitate the issue of such writs.

The principal difference between Democracy and Republicanism is that one stands for vacillation in government, the other for steady leadership in Theodore Roosevelt.

Upon this platform of Theodore Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt orders the country to vote for his nominee and his party.

"He Murdered Himself"

Julian Hawthorne Analyzes the Killing of Dr. Auspitz
by Miss Bertha Koten

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

WHEN the trained nurse, Miss Koten, shot the physician, Dr. Auspitz, she made the rather unusual statement, in such circumstances, that "the murdered himself."

She probably meant that his conduct toward her merited death, and that she had merely carried out the behest of the unwritten law.

A more deliberate killing was never done. He had ruined her and prevented her marriage with a man who had been her suitor; and she had brooded over the matter until she was in an abnormal state of mind.

There was no legal way of punishing the man, or any way of rehabilitating herself. When previously she had attempted to bring him to account for being and had taken up the whole of her life by way of defending himself.

She was an outcast, and she saw him continuing a successful career, and it was not his fault, nor likely to be his last. This is the kind of situation that brings despair and vengeance.
